GlobalVetLink and HVMS Announce Electronic Certificate Integration

Ames, IA – June 2, 2011 - GlobalVetLink (GVL®), the leader in electronic animal health documentation and HVMS, the leading software platform for veterinarians from Business Infusions, announced today a new feature available in the HVMS Practice Management Software. This new software integration will streamline the electronic certificate creation process, allowing veterinarians to create GlobalVetLink electronic certificates within HVMS.

The integration with HVMS and GlobalVetLink revolutionizes the electronic certificate process as it utilizes a system that veterinarians are currently engaged in on a daily basis, adding the extra functionality of state-approved, electronically signed EIA (Coggins) certificates. There will be no additional software for veterinarians and their staff to learn, making the implementation of the system at the clinic seamless.

“We're excited about our new integration with Business Infusions. Our goal is to make the electronic certificate process as easy as possible for our mutual clients, ultimately increasing efficiency and improving work flow for veterinarians and their staff”, says GlobalVetLink Integration Channel Manager, Jill Wagner.

GlobalVetLink connects veterinary practices to animal diagnostic laboratories, state animal health officials and animal owners via their online system. This real-time system significantly speeds up information distribution, as test details and finalized certificates are submitted through their web-based application. The electronic nature of the system eliminates the need for carbon copies and produces a clean, professional-looking document.

“The integration with GVL health certificates aligns with our guiding principles of improving customer work flow and overall practice efficiencies. Business Infusions looks forward to working with GVL and our customers to roll this out across the country” says Scott Pickard, President and Chief Executive Officer at Business Infusions Inc.

About GlobalVetLink

Over the past 10 years, GlobalVetLink (GVL®) has become the sole leader of the digital animal health certification industry. Our mission is to provide animal movement and health data management applications on a single platform while uniquely connecting veterinarians, animal owners, animal health industry partners, diagnostic laboratories and animal health officials to improve animal wellness and safety. Our vision at GVL is to be the world’s most trusted, secured and independent repository of animal health data. We are committed to expanding our technology to advance the animal health veterinary industry by providing best practice standards. We strongly believe that enhancing our user experience will lead to better animal health and Vet-Client Patient Relationships.
